Department of Architecture

A B. Arch (Bachelor of Architecture) is a 5-year undergraduate program focused on the art and science of designing and constructing buildings. It combines creative design with technical knowledge, encompassing architectural theory, history, and professional practice.

In essence, a B. Arch degree equips students with the skills and knowledge to:

- Plan, design, and construct buildings.
- Understand the technical and aesthetic aspects of architecture.
- Apply sustainable design principles.
- Work with digital tools and technologies.
- Contribute to the built environment and improve people's lives.
